227 GRADED SCHOOL CHILDREN QUALIFY FOR MEMORY CONTEST

Now They Must Prepare For Final at High School Next Week When 20 Compositions Must Be Identified—Papers Neat and Orderly—Those Who Passed.

Outside the high school there are 227 graded school children of this city who have qualified for the final contest in the great Musical Memory Contest to be held at the high school next week, a remarkably good showing.

Certain facts relative to the elimination contest were noted by the examining committee.

Whether passing the 75% mark or not, the papers for the most part were very neat and orderly, well spelled as to both the name of the composition and composer.

The school with the smallest number trying the examination was School No. 7, a great surprise to the committee which was still more surprised at the number that passed—7 pupils. School No. 8 had almost as many 100% pupils as the entire number entering the test as School No. 7, which was surpassed by the school having the smallest registration of pupils in the city, School No. 1. This is the more remarkable inasmuch as School No. 7 stands so well always in certain branches of work.

School No. 1 passed two-thirds of the pupils entering the contest, with only one of the successful pupils falling below 80%.

Practically three-quarters of the pupils at No. 2, won out, with but two falling below 80%.

School No. 8 entered 128 students and is credited with 21 pupils who got 100%, a remarkable showing.

Between this time and that of the final contest, those qualified to enter that contest must make themselves so thoroughly familiar with the 40 compositions of the full list as to be able to correctly recognize twenty of the compositions, giving correctly the names of the composers.

The following is the list of successful aspirants for the final contest.

NEW REPARATIONS BILL COLOSSAL

$64,000,000,000 is Sum to be Demanded of Germany if She Doesn't Present Satisfactory New Proposals by May 1.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, April 12.—Germany will be handed a bill totalling approximately 160,000,000,000 marks, normally $64,000,000,000, it was reliably reported as the reparations committee completed its hearings on the German arguments.

Today the commissioners began summing up the conclusions. They hope to present the final bill to Germany before the week is over.

The total is expected to make such an impression on the Germans that they will make energetic efforts to present satisfactory new proposals before May 1 in order to avoid military and economic moves of coercion by the allies.

The opening of the debate in the chamber of deputies on the final section of the budget, which provides for expenses based upon estimates of what Germany will actually pay, was marked by speeches in which it was emphatically insisted that the government keep its pledge of a heavy hand on Germany's neck. Speakers demanded that no new offers from Berlin be accepted unless they comply with the demands agreed upon at the London conference.

NO FRENCH REPLY.

Jusserand Empowered To Discuss Mandates.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, April 12.—The French foreign office denied today that France already has made formal reply to Secretary Hughes's note on league of nations mandates, as had been reported from Washington.

It was stated that Ambassador Jusserand had been instructed to "converse" with Secretary Hughes on the subject of mandates. All indications are that France maintains the view that the matter is one to be settled between the United States and Japan by direct negotiations, since the island of Yap is the crux of the mandate issue.

HARDING'S MESSAGE ONE OF SYMPATHY WITH EUROPE BUT AMERICA'S PROBLEMS PRESS FOR SOLUTION

Serves Notice That U. S. Will Have None of League But Leaves Door Open As To Versailles Treaty—Willing to Accept Peace by Congressional Resolution—Economy, Lower Taxes, Better Rail Conditions and Profiteers Among Vital Domestic Questions "Put Up To" Sixty-Seventh Congress—Crippled Veterans' Program To Cover Next Half Century.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 12.—Amid all the impressive solemnity that marks the presidential appearance before a joint session of congress, President Harding came before the assembled house and senate this afternoon and gave the nation and the world the first authoritative outline of the new administration's policy in foreign and domestic matters.

The foreign policy which the president outlined definitely and finally "scraps" the League of Nations as it now exists and declared that the United States can never become a member of it.

In order to get the nation back on a peace basis, the president declared he would approve a congressional resolution to this effect, providing that it contained no more than the simple declaration that the state of war which has existed between the United States and Germany for four years is at an end.

While the president was emphatic in his assertion that the United States will have none of the League of Nations, in its present form, he did not, however, wholly reject the treaty which former President Wilson interwove in the league. With regard to the treaty itself, the president left the door open for future developments. In this connection he said:

"The wiser course would seem to be the acceptance of the confirmation of our rights and interests as already provided and to engage under the existing treaty, assuming, of course, that this can be satisfactorily accomplished by such explicit reservations and modifications as will secure our absolute freedom from inadvisable commitments and safeguard our essential interests."

President Harding recognized, he stated specifically, that the United States cannot hold itself aloof from old world matters. As to what will be the course of procedure after the peace resolution once more puts America in a state of technical peace, the president said:

"With the super-governing league definitely rejected and with the world so informed, and with the status of peace proclaimed at home, we may proceed to negotiate the covenanted relationship so essential to the recognition of all the rights everywhere of our own nation and play our full part in joining the people of the world in the pursuits of peace once more.

"To such accomplishment—to the complete reestablishment of peace and its contracted relationships, to the realization of our aspirations for nations associated for world helpfulness without world government, for world stability on which humanity's hopes are founded, we shall address ourselves, fully mindful of the high privilege and the paramount duty of the United States in this critical period of the world."

While asserting his approval of the "peace by resolution," method, the president did not commit his administration to any definite time. He said that its passage must add no difficulty in effecting "with just reparations, the restoration for which all Europe yearns and upon which the world's recovery must be founded."

The great bulk of the president's communication was devoted to domestic affairs, to the national problems too pressing to be long neglected." That, he said at the outset, was the purpose for which he had called this extraordinary session of the 67th congress.

The message in part is as follows:

Members of the congress:

You have been called in extraordinary session to give your consideration to national problems far too pressing to be long neglected. We face our tasks of legislation and administration amid conditions as difficult as our government has ever contemplated. Under our political system the people of the United States have charged the new congress and the new administration with the solution—the readjustments, reconstruction, and restoration which must follow in the wake of war.

Home Problems First.

It may be regretted that we were so illy prepared for war's aftermath, so little made ready to return to the ways of peace, but we are not to be discouraged. Indeed, we must be the more firmly resolved to undertake our work with high hope and invite every factor in our citizenship to join in the efforts to find our normal onward way again.

The American people have appraised the situation, and with that tolerance and patience, which go with understanding they will give to us the influence of deliberate public opinion which ultimately becomes the edict of any popular government. They are measuring some of the stern necessities, and will join in the give and take which is so essential to firm reestablishment.

First in mind must be the solution of our problems at home, even though some phases of them are inseparably linked with our foreign relations. The surest procedure in every government is to put its own house in order.

I know of no more pressing problem at home than to restrict our national expenditures within the limits of our national income, and at the same time measurably lift the burdens of war taxation from the shoulders of the American people.

To Make Economy a Reality.

One cannot be unmindful that economy is a much-employed cry, most frequently stressed in pre-election appeals, but it is ours to make it an outstanding and ever-impelling purpose in both legislation and administration. The unrestrained tendency to heedless expenditure and the attending growth of public indebtedness, extending from Federal authority to that of state and municipality and including the smallest political sub-division, constitute the most dangerous phase of government today. The nation cannot restrain except in its own activities, but it can be exemplar in a wholesome reversal.

The staggering load of war debt must be cared for in orderly funding and gradual liquidation. We shall hasten the solution and aid effectively in lifting the tax burdens if we strike resolutely at expenditure.

Our current expenditures are running at the rate of approximately five billions a year, and the burden is unbearable. There are two agencies to be employed in correction. One is rigid resistance in appropriation and the other is utmost economy in administration. Let us have both. I have already charged department heads with this necessity. I am sure congress will agree and both congress and the administration may safely count upon the support of all right minded citizens, because the burden is theirs.

Internal Taxes Continue High.

The estimates of receipts and expenditures and the statement as to the condition of the treasury which the secretary of the treasury is prepared to present to you will indicate what revenues must be provided in order to carry on the government's business and meet its current requirements and fixed debt charges. Unless there are striking cuts in the important fields of expenditures, receipts from internal taxes cannot safely be permitted to fall below $4,000,000,000 in the fiscal years 1922 and 1923.

This would mean total internal tax collections of about one billion less than in 1920 and one half billion less than in 1921.

Tax Readjustment Essential.

The most substantial relief from the tax burden must come for the present from the readjustment of internal taxes, and the revision or repeal of those taxes which have become unproductive and are so artificial and burdensome as to defeat their own purpose. A prompt and thorough-going revision of the internal tax laws, made with due regard to the protection of the revenues, is, in my judgment, a requisite to the revival of business activity in this country. It is earnestly hoped therefore that the congress will be able to enact without delay a revision of the revenue laws and such emergency tariff measures as are necessary to protect American trade and industry.

It is of less concern whether internal taxation or tariff revision shall come first than has been popularly imagined, because we must do both, but the practical course for earliest accomplishment will readily suggest itself to the congress. We are committed to the repeal of the excess profits tax and the abolition of inequities and unjustifiable exasperations in the present system.

The country does not expect and will not approve a shifting of burdens. It is more interested in wiping out the necessity for imposing them and eliminating confusion and cost in the collection.

Emergency Tariff Essential.

The urgency for an instant tariff enactment, emergency in character and understood by our people that it is for the emergency only cannot be too much emphasized. I believe in the protection of American industry, and it is our purpose to prosper America first. The privileges of the American market to the foreign producer are offered too cheaply today, and the effect on much of our own productivity is the destruction of our self reliance, which is the foundation of the independence and good fortune of our people. Moreover, imports should pay their fair share of our cost of government. American agriculture is menaced, and its products are down to pre-war normals, yet we are endangering our fundamental industry through the high cost of transportation from farm to market and through the influx of foreign farm products, because we offer essentially unprotected the best market in the world. It would be better to err in protecting our basic food industry than paralyze our farm activities in the world struggle for restored exchanges.

A Tariff of Protection.

The mature revision of our tariff laws should be based on the policy of protection, resisting that selfishness which turns to greed, but ever concerned with that productivity at home which is the source of all-abiding good fortune. Trade can and ought to be honorable but it knows no sympathy. While the delegates of the nations at war were debating peace terms at Paris, and while we later debated our part in completing the peace, commercial agents of other nations were opening their lines and establishing their outposts, with a forward look to the morrow's trade.

A very important matter is the establishment of the government's business on a business basis. There was toleration of the easy going, unsystematic method of handling our fiscal affairs, when indirect taxation held the public unmindful of the federal burden. But there is knowledge of the high cost of government today, and high cost of living is inseparately linked with high cost of government. There can be no complete correction of the high living cost until government's cost is notably reduced.

Budget and Business Principles.

Let me most heartily commend the enactment of legislation providing for the national budget system.

I have said to the people we meant to have less of government in business as well as more business in government. It is well to have it understood that business has a right to pursue its normal, legitimate and righteous way, unimpended, and it ought to have no call to meet government competition where all risk is borne by the public treasury. There is no challenge to honest and lawful business success. But government approval of fortunate, untrammeled business does not mean toleration of restraint of trade or of maintained prices by unnatural methods.

One condition in the business world may well receive your inquiry. Deflation has been in progress but has failed to reach the mark where it can be proclaimed to the great mass of consumers. Reduced cost of basic production has been recorded, but high cost of living has not yielded in like proportions.

"Gouging" Keeps Prices Up.

I have asked the Federal Trade Commission for a report of its observations, and it attributes, in the main the failure to adjust consumers' cost to basic production costs to the exchange of information by "open price associations," which operate, evidently within the law, to the very great advantage of their members and equal disadvantage to the consumer. Without the spirit of hostility or haste in accusation of profiteering.

Of profiteering some suitable inquiry by congress might speed the price of readjustment to normal relationship with helpfulness to both producer and consumer. A measuring rod of fair prices will satisfy the country and give us a business revival to end all depression and unemployment.

It is little to be wondered that ill-considered legislation, the war strain, government operation in heedlessness of cost, and the conflicting programs, or the lack of them, for restoration have brought about a most difficult situation, made doubly difficult by the low tide of business. All are so intimately related that no improvement will be permanent until the railways are operated efficiently at a cost within that which the traffic can bear.

The Railroad Problem.

If we can have it understood that congress has no sanction for government ownership, that congress does not levy taxes upon the people to cover deficits in a service which should be self-supporting, there will be avowed foundation on which to rebuild.

Freight-carrying charges have mounted higher and higher until commerce is halted and production discouraged. Railway rates and cost of operation must be reduced.

Congress may well investigate and let the public understand wherein our system and the federal regulations are lacking in helpfulness or hindering in restrictions. The remaining obstacles which are the heritage of capitalistic exploitation must be removed and labor must join management in understanding that the public which pays shall be the public to be served and simple justice is the right will continue to be the right of all the people.

Transportation over the highways is little less important, but the problems relate to construction and development, and deserve your most earnest attention, because we are laying a foundation for a long time to come, and the creation is very difficult to visualize in its great possibilities.

Much Highway Fund Waste.

There is begun a new era in highway construction, the outlay for which runs far into hundreds of millions of dollars. Bond issues by road districts, counties and states mount to enormous figures, and the country is facing such an outlay that it is vital that every effort shall be directed against wasted effort and unjustifiable expenditures.

I know of nothing more shocking than the millions of public funds wasted in improvement of highways, wasted because there is no policy of maintenance. The neglect is not universal, but it is very near to it. There is nothing the congress can do more effectively to end this shocking waste than to condition all federal aid on provisions for maintenance.

It is not necessary to say it to congress, but I have thought this to be a befitting occasion to give notice that the United States means to establish and maintain a great merchant marine.

Our difficulties of opinion as to a policy of upbuilding have been removed by the outstanding fact of our having builded. If the intelligent and efficient administration under the existing laws makes established service impossible, the executive will promptly report to you.

It is proper to invite your attention to the importance of the question of radio communication and cables. To meet strategic, commercial and political needs, active encouragement should be given to the extension of American-owned and operated cable and radio services.

Cables and Radio.

Private monopolies tending to prevent the development of needed facilities should be prohibited. Government-owned facilities, wherever possible without unduly interfering with private enterprise of government needs, should be made available for general uses. Particularly desirable is the provision of ample cable and radio services at reasonable rates for the transmission of press matter, so that the American reader may receive a wide range of news, and the foreign reader receive full accounts of American activities.

Practical experience demonstrates the need for effective regulation of both domestic and international radio operation if this newer means of inter-communication is to be fully utilized.

Aviation is inseparable from either the army or the navy, and the government must, in the interests of national defense encourage its development for military and civil purposes.

It has become a pressing duty of the federal government to provide for the regulation of air navigation; otherwise independent and conflicting legislation will be enacted by the various states which will hamper the development of aviation.

I recommend the enactment of legislation establishing a bureau of aeronautics in the navy department to centralize the control of naval activities in aeronautics, and removing the restrictions on the personnel detailed to aviation in the navy.

To Remember Crippled Veterans.

The army air service should be continued as a coordinate combatant of the army, and its existing organization utilized in cooperation with other agencies of the government.

The American people expect congress unfailingly to voice the gratitude of the republic in a generous and practical way to its defenders in the world war, who need the supporting arm of the government. Our very immediate concern is for the crippled soldiers and those deeply needing the helping hand of government. Conscious of the generous intent of congress and the public concern for the crippled and dependent. I invited the services of a volunteer committee to inquire into the administration of the bureau of War Risk Insurance, the federal board for vocational training and other agencies of government in caring for the ex-soldiers, sailors and marines.

This committee has recommended and I convey the recommendations to you with cordial approval that all government agencies looking to the welfare of the ex-service men should be placed under one directing head, so that the welfare of these disabled saviors of our civilization and freedom may have the most efficient direction. It may be well to make such an official the director-general of service to war veterans, and place under his direction all hospitalization, vocational training, war insurance, rehabilitation and all pensions.

Program For Half Century.

The immediate extension and utilization of the government's hospital facilities in army and navy will bring relief to the acute conditions most complained of, and the hospital building program may be worked out to meet the needs likely to be urgent at the time of possible completion.

The whole program requires the most thoughtful attention of congress, for we are embarking on the performance of a sacred obligation which involves the expenditure of billions in the half century before us. Congress must perfect the policy of generous gratitude, and conscientious administration must stamp out abuse in the very beginning. We must strengthen rather than weaken the moral fibre of the beneficiaries, and humanize all efforts so that rehabilitation shall be attended by re-spiritualization.

During the recent political canvass the proposal was made that a department of public welfare should be created. It was endorsed and commended so strongly that I venture to call it to your attention and to suggest favorable legislative consideration.

I assume the maternity bill, already strongly approved, will be enacted promptly, thus adding to our manifestations of human interest.

Somewhat related to the foregoing human problems is the race question.

Mutual Race Tolerance.

Congress ought to wipe the stain of barbaric lynching from the banners of a free and orderly, representative democracy.

I am convinced that in mutual tolerance, understanding, charity, recognition of the interdependence of the races, and the maintenance of the

RIVER TRAFFIC WOULD BE HIT

If Bill to Eliminate Fifty-First Street Pier Passes, Says Judge Clearwater Attorney For Companies Doing Business Along River.

A bill is pending in the legislature introduced under the direction of the commissioner of docks of the city of New York, to eliminate the pier at the foot of West Fifty-first street, as a terminal for Hudson river traffic and tonnage. A hearing before the senate committee on cities was held at Albany late last week at which Judge Clearwater as counsel for the Tompkins Cove Stone Company, the New York Trap Rock Corporation, the Knickerboker Ice Company and other companies doing business along the Hudson appeared in opposition to the bill. At his request the assistant state engineer also appeared The judge's argument astounded the members of the senate committee and the state engineer in its marshalling of facts regarding the traffic on the Hudson, which found its terminal and point of distribution at West Fifty-first street and immediately adjacent piers

The state engineer's office had none of the data at its command, and apparently no effort heretofore had been made to collate accurate information regarding Hudson river tonnage It is of such importance and of so great interest to the business interests of Kingston and its vicinity that The Freeman prints the following extracts from it Judge Clearwater said:

This bill if enacted into law—

First—Will cripple the handling of the immense traffic reaching New York city by the Hudson river its tributaries and the canals of the state

Second—Greatly will increase the price of building material, brick, crushed stone, cement, lumber, ice, reaching New York through the waters of the Hudson, and seriously will embarrass and delay its delivery.

Third—Seriously will interfere with the settled policy of the state to create and develop ample terminal facilities for the barge canal.

Fourth—Enormously will increase the charges for trucking and distributing this tonnage to its destination in the city of New York, and the adjacent territory.

Fifth—The bill is inimical to the best interests of the state, and ought not to pass

The products which come to New York city by the water from the manufacturers in the Hudson river valley and in other parts of New York state, are shipped in cargo barges which are brought to a New York terminal in fleets and from there distributed to final destinations. These products consist of bricks, crushed stone, cement, blue stone, lumber, sand, ice and other miscellaneous commodities. In previous years the tonnage has exceeded a total of 8,000,000 tons of cargo per annum handled in approximately 16,000 barge loads. The period of operation is from the 15th of March until about the 15th of December and during the busy season, as many as 125 barges per day are landed at this terminal * * * *

It is a necessity that these barges have some place in New York at which they can be landed and from which distribution can be made. This has been well recognized and from time to time the department of docks has designated piers as a district where Hudson river barges could be landed and from which distribution was made. * * * *

The location of the terminal determines the cost of distribution of these materials about New York The present district is located with reference to the geographical centre of Manhattan so that the barges may be sent up or down the North river and around the East river without undue delay or expense. If the district be moved further north, there will be added to the cost of building materials, the additional expense of time and power to distribute these boats from that further point to their respective destinations and this added expense must be an increase in the cost of building materials as furnished to New York. * * * *

It is stated that the city needs a space to erect a garbage dump in this vicinity in order that the space now occupied at Forty-sixth street may be used for steamships. The commerce of the state of New York is fully as important to the city of New York as any other part of its commerce and is of very large volume. * * * *

The New York state legislature has thought it necessary to pass laws providing terminals for the commerce coming out of the state canals and have expended many millions of dollars for these facilities. The tonnage handled on the Hudson river is many times that ever handled on the state canals and the only accommodation it has had is under the present law providing a terminal of the minimum size necessary.

EX-KAISER IS INCONSOLABLE

Is at Bedside Constantly During Last Three Days of Wife's Life And at End is Led Weeping From Chamber.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Doorn Holland, April 12.—This peaceful little Dutch village bears its every day aspect except for a steady stream of automobiles conveying neighbors, friends and admirers to Doorn Castle to express their sorrow over the death of Augusta Victoria, the former German empress. Veritable mountains of flowers and wreaths are being taken to the castle

Friedrich Wilhelm, the former crown prince, is here for the mourning service which will be held at the castle tomorrow. All those in the castle are wearing deep mourning

Some details of the kaiserin's end are gradually becoming known At the kaiserin's special request her husband did not leave the sickroom at any time during the last three days of her life, for she insisted that he be with her when the end came and she knew that the condition of her heart was such that her life hung by a thin thread.

It was at 5 o'clock yesterday morning that the doctors gave up hope An hour later she passed away so suddenly and peacefully that those in the death chamber could hardly believe her suffering was all over.

The ex-kaiser broke down completely. He seemed inconsolable and unable to grasp the fact that the woman who had lived beside him for 40 years and never once had failed in her faith in him, and who had born him seven children, had closed her eyes for the last sleep.

Doctors had to lead the weeping ex-emperor from the death bed

CHURCH MEN'S RECEPTION

At Fair Street Church Long To Be Remembered.

A delightful occasion not soon to be forgotten was the very cordial reception extended to the men of the Reformed Church of the Comforter last Friday night, in the chapel of the Fair Street Reformed Church by the men's Bible class

It was a jolly bunch of men, about sixty of them, who gathered at the Church of the Comforter at 7:30 that night in anticipation of a cordial good-fellowship meeting with their brothers in the sister church. It is not too much to say, that it would be hard to find a group of men, who can excel the men's Bible class in cordiality as they welcomed those who were to enjoy their hospitality. "Good-fellowship" was the key note of the evening. After an interesting business session during which some important matters were acted upon.

The Rev. F. M. Moot, pastor of the Congregational Church of this city gave a very interesting address on "Science and the Bible as illustrated in the first chapter of Genesis" In the course of his remarks he stated that there was really no conflict between science and the Bible.

After the address refreshments were served and it was quite evident that the men had brought their appetites with them, such refreshments and enough for the one hundred and twenty men present and then some. Some of the men gathered around the piano and had a good song feast. Others gathered in groups and had a little chat or exchanged stories, while nearly all enjoyed the fine cigars, which the men's Bible class provided, so that it is not to be wondered at that the men were loath to separate and that it was nearly midnight before they left for their homes Many expressed themselves as hoping that this might be only the beginning of receptions of a similar character, so that men of the Reformed Churches of this city might become better acquainted with each other and thereby perhaps be able to enter more largely into the work of the kingdom. All praise to the men's Bible class of the Fair Street Church who have set the ball rolling. May it grow in size and increase in momentum.

RIVERBY MAY BE MEMORIAL

Riverby, Slabsides and Woodchuck Lodge, the places most closely associated with the life and writings of the naturalist, John Burroughs, will likely become a memorial to their late occupant and owner. Julian Burroughs, son of John Burroughs, and Dr. Clara Barrus, literary executor of the John Burroughs estate, have given their endorsement to such a plan, and steps will probably be taken within a short time for the forming of a memorial association.

The committee in charge of the framing of the plan for the association includes the following: Frank M. Chapman, Kermit Roosevelt, Hamlin Garland, G. Clyde Fisher, Clara Barrus, Edwin Markham, William O Roy, Carl E. Akeley, R. J H. De Leach, Irving Bacheller and Henry Fairfield Osborn A meeting will soon be called at the American Museum of Natural History to complete the organization.—Poughkeepsie Eagle-News

OUR INJURED SOLDIERS.

The collapse of hospital and relief agencies of the government in looking after wounded, gassed and disabled soldiers of the American Expeditionary Force furnishes valuable lessons in establishing a permanent policy under the Harding administration and the investigation now under way will be thorough. President Harding has announced that he wants a "diligent inquiry" of department heads or those associated with them in an effort to find out just where the government agencies are in any way lacking in authority, or neglectful or failing to carry out the unquestioned intent of congress. America never intended to be neglectful of her soldiers in the World War, but incompetence has prevailed in the administration of that branch of government just as it has in other branches. The pity of such incompetency has seemed the greater because it has resulted in causing suffering to men who already were suffering both physically and mentally from the effects of the war. The American Legion estimates there are 20,000 returned soldiers who ought to be in hospitals. They cannot get there. There is no lessening need for hospitals but instead the need is growing greater. President Harding speaks the mind of the entire nation when he says that "it is well to realize that the American people want to prove the Republic's gratitude to these men." He is correct in stating that the regulations and policies adopted at this time are likely to be in effect for a full half century to come. Therefore the necessity of starting on a firm foundation is greater. There is no time to be lost. Delay causes additional suffering. Even while studying the mistakes which have been made the government should busy itself in laying foundations for permanent relief work which can proceed more rapidly as the passing months and years disclose the need of a large superstructure. Relief work for the soldier must not be delayed until the plan is complete in every detail because such procedure will find many men beyond the stage of relief. President Harding has the right idea. He should have the co-operation of every agency of the government.

WHIPPING FOR BANDITS.

Delaware is expected to be unusually successful in checking the "crime wave," particularly in the case of criminals of the "bandit" type. Other states are employing long terms of imprisonment, often the longest terms the law allows, but Delaware is now employing the lash in addition, and if anything can put wholesome fear into the hearts of criminals that will do it. Forty lashes for robbery or attempted robbery on the highway or in a house, in addition to long terms of imprisonment, will make the desperadoes of that state think twice before they hold up a man or woman on the highway or break into a house to steal.

Delaware's whipping post has often been denounced as a relic of medieval barbarism, which it undoubtedly is, and its survival to this day is a remarkable fact. But whether it is approved or disapproved, it is admittedly effective. Native Delaware criminals are said to shrink in horror from flogging and both they and criminals coming from the outside have generally been careful to refrain from crimes that entail the whipping post. Now that "bandits" have been placed on the whipping post list, Delawareans will sleep at night and walk lonely roads by day with less apprehension. Whipping may be barbarous but it seems to beget a respect for law enforcement that nothing else will short of hanging.

Liquor is obtainable with such ease in Michigan that the state finds itself unable to dispose of the 100,000 quarts of good liquor which have been confiscated since Prohibition laws were passed. Druggists were expected to buy the stock for medicinal purposes but they decline to do so because there is no profit in handling liquor in the way the law prescribes; the cost of the liquor plus the cost, time and trouble of keeping records and performing other work in connection with sales does not give them profit enough to make it desirable to fill prescriptions. The stock of liquor handled by private individuals engaged in bootlegging is so large and can be obtained so cheap that druggists simply advise prescription-holders to get what they want outside, and patients find no trouble in getting it. There is no way to compel druggists to buy the confiscated supply, so the state not only is confronted with the problem of disposing of its liquor but is also losing money which it had estimated druggists would be willing to pay for such liquor. The old adage about leading a horse to water but not being able to make him drink might be changed so as to apply to the disposal of liquor confiscated under Prohibition laws equally as much as it might be applied to actual Prohibition in the United States at the present time.

NEW SEED LAW IN OPERATION.

Some Dealers Neglect To Label Seeds.

It is evident from seed inspection work now in progress at the Geneva Experiment Station that some dealers in agricultural seeds are not aware of the provisions of the new seed law requiring the tagging of every lot of seed offered for sale in the state. Purchasers should insist, therefore, upon seed bearing a tag or label which states the purity, germination, and the presence or absence of weed seeds in each lot of seed. Only in this way can the farmer secure the full benefit of the law.

A survey of the seed market is now being made by official inspectors and they will soon be in a position to locate persons unacquainted with the law or those who disregard its requirements. Purchasers can cooperate with the inspectors by reporting to the commissioner of agriculture those dealers who wilfully and persistently ignore the provisions of the law.

Large quantities of alfalfa and red clover seed have been imported but such seed is not adapted to this state. It is essential that the farmer knows the source of seed used on his farm.

Due to the high prices which prevailed last year and to favorable weather conditions, many farmers have saved their own seed or expect to buy from their neighbors. Grass or clover seeds from such sources are likely to be unfit for seeding purposes as most farmers do not have the necessary equipment to clean such seed properly. Also it should be remembered that the seed law applies to the sale of clover and grass seed on the farm. Only grains and cereals can be purchased on the farm where produced without labeling.

Tests of seed corn made up to the present time indicate that germination of some lots of corn is fairly good. It is highly desirable, however, that all seed stocks be tested before planting.

The Ladies' Missionary Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Mary J. Relyea on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Topic: "Home Missions, Our Church East and West." Franklin Company At Full Speed.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 12.—During March, 1,005 cars were shipped from the Franklin Automobile Company of Syracuse, this being the full output of the factory. Since February 10, the factory has operated at 100 per cent normal (or at the rate of 40 cars per day) and from that date up to April 1, has shipped a total of 1,765 cars. The extent to which buying pressure has increased, is shown by the fact that shipments are right on the heels of production. Cars are on the way to customers within three hours after they have been finally passed by the inspectors. Orders for 842 cars for April delivery were already on hand on April 1.

THE OFFICE CAT

By Junius.

From My Window.

With joy I sit at my window sill
And watch the women go by until
The foreman's voice rings loud and shrill,
"Git busy on that copy."

So I read a line of riot or rankle
And then look down at a passing ankle,
And then I ponder on what the last
Yank'll
Want if he ever gets back home.

I write about Ford and his libel
Of some old gink who can sing the Bible,
And then gaze down with an instinct tribal
On a pair of delicious shoulders.

The livelong day, that's the way it goes
And I sit in my window and look at the shows,

Trot Out Your Candidates.

It has been said that the busiest thing in the world is a one-eyed man at a three-ring circus.

For second honors we nominate a tongue-tied woman at a chatter party.

Are there any further nominations before we begin balloting?

Few things are so quickly forgotten as a campaign issue after a campaign is over.

Criticism doesn't hurt anybody. Nor does ridicule for that matter. What has been more abused than the flivver?—and yet everybody knows that it keeps going.

Kinda seems like we pulled that once before.

But in order to play safe, we'll risk it again.

Father wishes for some one to invent a community lawnmower.

A woman often goes shopping and forgets to take any money with her. But she never goes shopping and forgets to take her pocketbook with her.

If all the unkind things which have been said about the new gas rate were printed on a single strip of paper eight inches wide, said strip would girdle the globe three times and one-half.

And incidentally would bring quite a tidy sum if sold for paper.

There is something wrong with the fellow whose heart doesn't beat a little faster about this time of the year.

We don't know whether to feel flattered or offended when somebody slips a squib with the remark: "Here's a good one for your column." And then find upon examination that it's one we ran two or three weeks back.

Where They Tax Tidiness.

In Turkey, due to the short-sighted policy of the government, it is not the custom to paint the exterior of the average house, for the tax is directly determined by the appearance of the building, a neatly painted house being taxed twice as much as a shabby dwelling, irrespective of the interior of either.

DEMOCRATS CRACK PARTY WHIP

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 12.—Disciplinary measures may be adopted by house Democratic leaders toward such Democratic members of the house who fail to agree with a majority of their number in a stand on tariff and revenue legislation.

It is possible that loss of desired important committee assignments may be the punishment meted out to recalcitrants. This is to be determined following a caucus to be held tonight by the Democrats to consider action to be taken by the party on the emergency farmers tariff bill which is to be called up in the house tomorrow.

At the last session of congress there were 40 Democrats who broke from all party moorings and supported the Fordney emergency tariff bill with its high protective duties on agricultural products. Most of these members are in the present house. The bill coming up tomorrow is similar to the Fordney bill and consistency would require these Democrats to vote for it again.

Representative Kitchin, Democratic leader, has prepared a strong indictment of the proposed legislation. He desires united opposition to it from the Democrats, and urges that if the necessity ever existed for its passage, that necessity has passed.

FOREST FIRES

Caused Tremendous Loss In United States.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., April 12.—Forest fires, sweeping over 56,488,307 acres of land in 45 states, caused damage amounting to $85,715,747 during the five years, 1916 to 1920, inclusive, according to information made public today by the Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture. A total of 160,318 forest fires occurred during this period. Minnesota was the chief sufferer, its loss being $30,895,868.

The bulletin containing this information is a special edition of Safeguarding America Against Fire issued for the Federal and state forest services by the national board of fire underwriters. It presents the latest survey of the country's forest fire situation, and points out that the major portion of the damage to America's forest resources, due to human agencies, is preventable. Railroads caused the largest number of all fires chargeable to such agencies.

The bulletin also presents from the Forest Service on fires in the national forests and from state forestry officials covering conditions in 20 states. These reports deplore the present day waste of natural resources and emphasize the need for public education to avoid the disastrous consequences of continued neglect in failing to provide adequate fire protection for the forests of the country.

Church Play Given at Lake Katrine Grange Hall.

Before a large and appreciative audience "The Minister's Wife's New Bonnet" was presented in the Grange Hall at Lake Katrine on Monday evening by Mrs. Davis's circle of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church. The leads and chorus far surpassed their original performance which was given in the Albany Avenue Baptist Church and which was considered by many people to have been the finest amateur performance to have been given in Kingston in many a day.

To attempt to single out anyone as being the hit of the evening would be unfair to the remainder of the cast, as each and every one took their own part as though the same had been written especially for them.

The play is to be presented at the English Lutheran Church Tuesday evening, April 19, by the same cast and anyone desiring an evening of good wholesome fun will be well repaid by attending the performance to be given on the above date.

Mrs. William Fairbrother who has been the guest of her sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Sleight and Mrs. Olive Banks on Broadway has returned to her home in Brooklyn.

Port Ewen needs a water supply. This paying out taxes every year and not getting any benefit for it is a waste of money. Why don't the people get together and say they want a water supply. Their taxes would be slightly increased but then they would have something to show for their money. An engine could easily be fixed, so that with a series of pipes laid from the river and thence along the main street would pump a sufficient supply of water to put out any large fire in this vicinity. At certain intervals along the way hydrants could be installed. Then where there was a fire a hose could be connected to one and operated in the same manner as in Kingston. The disastrous fire that destroyed Merritt Every's home and garage, the home could have been saved if the firemen could have had a supply of water. As we are situated now there is nothing to fight fire with.

Sennett, when he first began to find the remedy, was in despair for he found that most people were pessimists, but he has gradually wormed his ideas of laugh into their heads and he now has a following that numbers more than thirty millions and with each getting at least a thousand laughs out of his latest sensational comedy, the thirty billion laughs should have at least some effect on the populace.

What do want to know about nature subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper. Look for answers in this column.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Do the majority of the animals of the wilds, or domestic animals, die a tragic or a peaceful death?

2. How can I protect oak trees around my summer home infested by a dark caterpillar with yellowish stripes running around its body?

3. What American birds as a class sing sweetly at twilight?

Answers in tomorrow's Nature Notes

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. How long does a common land turtle live? I marked one in 1854 and have met the old fellow almost every year; smart as ever.

This is not an impossible statement. Of course, finding a turtle whose history one does not know, with a date cut into its shell, is no proof of the creature's longevity. But there are authentic instances of turtles marked and recorded by one family, and seen by later generations at intervals reaching easily through 60 years. The Box turtle, strictly terrestrial, often lives to an old age.

2. Why does the Great Willow herb grow more abundantly on burnt over areas in the forest than elsewhere?

This wild flower, a member of the evening primrose family, is also called Wild Fire, or Fire Weed, from its well known habit of springing up quickly over charred tracks. This is partly becuse its seeds are tipped with silky fibres that make them float great distances on the wind, so that they easily settle on districts opened up by fire, and partly because the soil enriched by wood ashes is favorable for germination.

3. At what season does the yellow hammer, or flicker become musical?

In the spring all birds are would-be songsters. The flicker responds to this tendency, and his April call is his finest touch, his most musical expression. A week or two before the nesting season begins, a group of these birds may be sometimes seen, gambolling and courting in a decayed tree. Sometimes only a gentle persuasive cooing is heard, or a quiet, confidential chattering, interrupted by a long, loud call, a sort of wild, rollicking laughter, interrupted with cries, yelps and squeals.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE

XXIX.—IOWA

The State of Iowa was originally occupied by the Iowa Indians. The actual meaning of the word has been interpreted in several ways. Some say it means "beautiful land," but the more likely derivation is the Algonquin word "ajawa" which means "across" or "beyond." This was probably applied to this tribe of Indians by the Illinois tribes who were hostile to them, and resided on the eastern side of the Mississippi river. The early white visitors to this region included Marquette and Joliet, who landed here on their explorations of the Mississippi in 1673.

The first settlement was made by a French Canadian named Julian Dubuque. He obtained in 1788 a large grant of land from the Indians, where the city which was named after him now stands. Here he flourished, mining lead and trading with the Indians, until his death in 1810, when this settlement was given up.

With the acquisition of the Louisiana Purchase in 1803, Iowa, which was a part of this huge territory, came into the hands of the United States from France. At first Iowa was a part of the Louisiana territory, then of Missouri territory. Later it formed a portion of Michigan territory and then of Wisconsin territory. In 1838, however, it attained a distinct individuality when it was formed into the Iowa territory.

Pioneers soon came in large numbers and about 1832 a substantial settlement was made near Burlington, and Dubuque was founded in 1833. The population grew so rapidly that in 1846 Iowa was admitted as the twenty-ninth state of the Union. Its area is 56,147 square miles and it has thirteen presidential electoral votes.

Iowa is familiarly called the Hawkeye State.

LEIBHARDT.

Leibhardt, April 11.—The regular preaching service will be held on Sunday afternoon, April 17, by the Rev. W. W. Voight of Accord. We hope to see a good attendance.

Meade Brown, of the Ellenville High School, is home for an April vacation.

A number of the young boys and men have been very successful at trout fishing.

Miss Jennie DeWitt, who has been enjoying a two weeks' vacation at her home, left on Sunday, April 10, where she has a position in Kingston.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. Melissa Krom of Mettacahonts, who has been very ill, is improving.

Russell Gray has returned home from the south.

Willet Townsend and his two sons, Herbert and James, of Ellenville, came out by auto on Friday. The boys enjoyed the day trout fishing and met with good luck, and Uncle Willet spent the day visiting with relatives and calling on old acquaintances, the first in ten years.

If you are interested in a monument attend to it at once. Decoration Day will soon be here. BYRNE BROS., Broadway and Henry street.—Advertisement.

"THE LIGHT FROM ABOVE"

"Say, dad," said son, the other night,
"Why can't we have electric light
I'm tired of luggin' this oil can
Up 'the' street to the grocery man."
Dad then looked around and grinned,
He knew his son just had him pinned.
"We can, my lad, the light is better,
I'll write CARL MILLER & SON a letter."

In a day or so, or perhaps better,
Sure enough we got a letter.
It started in to tell us that
They lived in a neat little six-room flat.
"How much will it cost," it read "to install
A light in each room and one in the hall.
I've promised to give my family a treat,
This one is one that is hard to beat."

We answered the letter and told him that
'Twould cost fifty dollars to wire the flat.
He called at our office the very next night
Signed a light contract, our price was alright.

HANNIGAN GIRL SENT TO HOME

Margaret Hannigan, the girl-mother of the infant abandoned by her near the banks of the Fallkill in Poughkeepsie, in a satchel which was found some time later by boys, with the infant dead, was brought into supreme court at Poughkeepsie at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon and after entering a plea of guilty to the charge of abandonment, was sentenced by Justice J. Addison Young to the House of the Good Shepherd, Albany, N. Y., for an indeterminate period.

John E. Mack, counsel for the girl, arose and made a plea for mercy for his client.

"In her weakened condition after leaving the hospital," he said, "she took her child with her, expecting that the father would meet her according to appointment, when they would be married and atone together for their fault.

"He didn't come. In her distress she left the child nicely clothed and perfectly well, in a spot where she hoped and believed that some one would find it and care for it."

WHO KNEW JOHNSON

When He Enlisted Here Over 50 Years Ago.

59 West 126th street, New York City
Editor, The Freeman:

I am anxious to locate some one who resided in Rondout during 1864. My husband, James Johnson, enlisted at that place and gave his occupation as printer and would be glad to learn if there is any one connected with your paper who could recall this man and give me some important information. He was assigned to Co. K, 100 N. Y. Infantry. Up to date I have been unable to locate any one who was acquainted or can recall.

I do not know if he was employed in Rondout or Kingston. I am many years his junior, so I am having quite some difficulty. I shall greatly appreciate any suggestions or assistance you may be able to render, names of any one on whom I could call or write.

Yours very truly,
MRS. K. E. JOHNSON.

Joseph Going To Circus.

Joseph and his brethren will go on their annual pilgrimage to the Ringling-Barnum circus in Madison Square Garden on Thursday afternoon of this week. The brethren number nineteen in all and are furnished by the Charity Aid Association and are all typical American boys, while the Joseph mentioned in the beginning is the secretary of the Ulster County Society in the city of New York, and formerly attended circuses in Kingston. Dexter Fellowes told the charity worker who made the arrangements that he would see to it that the pink lemonade would be pinker, the peanuts softer, the ice cream colder and the lollypops harder, and that Lillian Kincaid, the Golden Girl in the Golden Whirl, will give an extra twirl.

Wilhelmina Sends Condolence.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Amsterdam, April 12.—Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands has sent a private letter of condolence to the ex-kaiser on the death of Augusta Victoria. The Dutch government, like the queen herself, is treating the event privately, not as a state affair as it would have been had the kaiserin still occupied the German throne at the time of her death. With the arrival of several of the ex-imperial couple's children surveillance of the former kaiser and his family has been intensified to prevent any international incidents.

Stock Company At Opera House—Billie Burke At Keeney's.

The Chicago Stock Company at the Kingston Opera House last evening presented "Lombardi, Ltd.," to a delighted audience and the company received high praise. This company will be seen at the Opera House every afternoon and evening this week in a repertoire of high class royalty plays well staged and handsomely dressed. The play tonight is George Broadhurst's Broadway success, "She Walked In Her Sleep," farce comedy. Wednesday, "The Naughty Wife," Selwyn and Company's brilliant comedy.

Billie Burke in "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson" at Keeney's tonight shows scenes in Paris, during the gay carnival season and laughter and sighs abound in this display of fashions direct from gay "Paree." Mack Sennett's "On a Summer Day" with all his peppy fun makers is also programmed. Wednesday Bryant Washburn in "Burglar Proof," also the last episode of "The Son of Tarzan."

Tom Mix in "Prairie Trails" at the Auditorium tonight offers a chance to get all the thrills of youthful fancy and a love romance. The Hall Room Boys are also featured.

After baking bread for nine armies which crossed and recrossed her country during the World War, Mrs. Chaya Menkes, wife of an American citizen, is being held at Ellis Island because of a false vise of her passport. Mrs. Menkes lived in Galicia during the war. One of her daughters was killed by the Polish soldiers, Mrs. Menkes said, and she had to bake bread for each army in succession to support herself. On April 5, Hirsch Isaac Menkes, husband of the detained woman, became a United States citizen. But he is still unable to claim his wife and children, Feiga, aged eleven, and David fifteen. the family arrived at Ellis Island two months ago. Today they do not know whether they will be permitted to go to their relatives in New York or be sent back to Europe.

SYMPATHETIC COMMENT

Of English Press on Death of Former German Empress.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 12.—Comment on the leading English newspapers on the death of the ex-kaiserin is generally sympathetic.

"No hard words will be said of her," says the Daily News. "It was her misfortune that she had to share the miserable ignominy which befell the arch-betrayer of the peace of the world."

The Daily Telegraph refers to Augusta Victoria as "a kindly well meaning lady who conscientiously did her duty in a very uncomfortable station in which it had pleased God to place her. In the catastrophic close of her life we find much matter for pity and even sympathy."

"From such a character none can withhold respect," said the Daily Chronicle."

John S. Williams, wealthy Jasper county, Ga., planter who was found guilty charged with the murder of eleven negroes on his farm, and sentenced to life imprisonment. Clyde Manning, a negro farm hand, confessed to the murders and accused Williams of having ordered him to commit them. Attorney for Williams immediately made a motion for a new trial, stating that the verdict was contrary to evidence and law.

Use of Peat as Fuel.

Machines for handling peat have been in use in Europe for many years, though only recently have they approached any great degree of commercial success. Development of the industry in some of the European countries has been aided by government appropriations and experimental work. In Sweden, particularly, considerable progress has been made. Powdered peat has been burned successfully as locomotive fuel there, comparing favorably with coal, and the government has erected several large peat-powder plants. Preparation of peat for fuel as a commercial enterprise also has been developed in Canada to some extent. From 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 tons of peat fuel are used annually in European countries, according to the United States bureau of mines.—Fort Dearborn Independent.

Hawaiians a Mixed Race.

Louis R. Sullivan of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, measured the heads and bodies and noted the characteristics of 2,000 natives of the Hawaiian Islands. This relationship makes the Hawaiian a cousin of the Chinese, Japanese and other Asiatic races, including the Malays, as well as a connection of the American Indian and Eskimo. He also draws some of his blood from the continent of Europe and a very little from the original stock of the Australian aborigine. Ethnological facts also are being sought in Samoa and farther south. When complete the data will be tabulated and analyzed and the results publishd. Meanwhile, the Polynesian is dying fast; his race is passing out at high speed and the investigations are being pushed with as little delay as possible.

Ancestry of Moonfish.

One of the strangest of all fishes that swim the seas is the great moonfish or Opah, called in California "Mariposa." It is a broad, flat fish, writes a correspondent, almost as deep as long, with flattened sides, small toothless mouth, and short tail. It lives in the open seas, reaching a weight of 400 pounds. Its flesh is rich, tender and toothsome, but no person is likely to taste it more than once, as the fish seldom appears twice in the same place. The one living species of Lampris is not related to any other existing fish, constituting an order by itself. The extinct moonfish of the Miocene diatom beds may therefore stand as Lampris zatima. The specimen is one of great interest as showing the antiquity of one of the most singular of all living bony fishes.

Cooking Eggs With a Bit of String.

Cooking eggs and then returning them to their normal state is a secret trick practiced by India fakirs. The apparatus consists of a leather [illegible] and four pieces of string. An egg, after being placed in a sling made from these simple articles, is whisked high above the head and kept whirling at a great speed. No one can understand how the time required to cook the egg is reckoned, for no clock or watch is used. During the performance, the fakir talks to his admiring audience, and cannot therefore be accused of counting the time. Should a customer wish a hard-boiled egg to be returned to its soft state, he need only speak. A little more skillful maneuvering and the egg is as fresh as if it had just been laid!

Value of Friendship.

Nothing that we experience in life makes a deeper appeal to us than the loyalty of our friends in the hour of misfortune. Frequently we hear it said that only in misfortune do we know our real friends. There is no doubt about this. Superficial friends will not stand the acid test of adversity. It is amazing what [illegible] loyalty is when life feels its stress and strain. It may not disclose itself in any material way, for its finest expressions are quite apart from material gifts. It is those who stand by us that constitute our safeguards and are our bulwark when the sorrows and misfortunes come.—James E. Freeman.

Profiteer of 200 Years Ago.

It is probable that the Prince de Carignan, from whom John Law rented Hotel de Soissons, was one of the few figures in the mad speculation which occurred in France in 1720, to make a fortune and keep it. In renting the building he stipulated that the gardens remain in his control and that he be granted a monopoly to the extent that dealings in Mississippi stock be legal only within the confines of his grounds. He erected 500 small tents and pavilions for the use of brokers and their clients, and it is estimated that his rentals for space in the gardens netted him monthly an average of over [illegible].—World's Work.

Life and Death.

Just because you think life is not worth living is no sign that death will be worth dying.

Reflect Waking Thoughts.

Dreams, according to one set of theorists, are simply the continuation of the thoughts we have during our waking hours. We are not always conscious that we have these thoughts or desires, but they are lurking in our brain, nevertheless, and reveal themselves in some manner in our dreams. But sometimes it happens that what we have dreamed accidentally comes true and then we ascribe more importance to dreams than is good for us.

Dates Back to Revolution.

The expression "smart as a Philadelphia lawyer" has been traced back to pre-Revolutionary days and its exact origin is not known. It seems that in those days the Philadelphia bar was noted for the shrewdness and cleverness of its members and the expression was current as a term to signify such traits.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The last will and testament of Melisa A. Parcell, deceased, of the town of Rochester, has been filed for probate in surrogate's court and citations issued returnable April 25. Ada Parcell is named as executrix. The value of the estate is $1,100 personal. Virgil B. Van Wagonen is the attorney for the petitioner.

A decree has been granted in the matter of the application of Wallace France, as administrator of the goods and chattels of what was the estate of Harriet E. Roosa, deceased, late of the town of Marbletown, to transfer real property heretofore sold under contract. Charles W. Walton, attorney for the applicant.

In Surrogate's court the last will and testament of Benjamin TerBush, deceased, of Ely Mountain, town of Ulster, with codicils has been filed for probate and citations issues returnable May 16th. The original will is dated July 10, 1911, the codicils being made in 1915, 1917, 1918 and 1919. By the original will decedent bequeathed, devised and gave to his wife, Catherine TerBush "the use, possession, income and enjoyment of all property during the term of her natural life, with the further right to use and expend from the principal of this my estate so much as may be necessary for her care, support, nursing, maintenance, etc., should the income be insufficient." Other bequests were $500 each to Mary A. Addis a sister, William and Peter Addis nephews; to Dory Osterhoudt, Samuel F. Alliger, Lizzie TerBush, Alfred Davis $500 each; to Fletcher Turner and William B. Addis $100 each; to James Mack and Roman Mack $200 each; to Catherine A. Hill $200; to the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church of Middleport, Ulster county, known as the Reformed Dutch Church of Kerhonkson, $200. By the provisions of the will none of the foregoing legacies would be paid until after the death of the wife Catherine Ter Bush, and shall not draw interest. Should the legatees Lizzie Ter Bush, Alfred Davis or Catherine Hill die during the lifetime of the wife, in that event the legacy shall lapse and fall into the residuary estate; but should either of the other of said legatees die before the death of maker of will or wife, the legacies given shall not lapse but shall pass to the next of kin of the one so dying. The rest and residue of the estate, real and personal, which may remain at the death of the decedent's wife, and after payment of legacies, is devised and bequeathed to decedent's sister Mary A. Hill $200 is revoked. The codicil of April 23, 1918, directs that the $100 devised to the Reformed Church of Kerhonkson be invested by depositing it in a savings bank and the income to be expended for church expenses. New Director Chosen.

At a recent meeting of the board of control, Dr. R. W. Thatcher, dean of the Department of Agriculture and director of the experiment station, University of Minnesota, was elected director of the New York Agricultural Experiment Station to succeed Dr. W. H. Jordan who retires July first. Dr. Thatcher comes to Geneva after successfully serving as the administrative head of one of the finest agricultural institutions in the country. His duties as head of the Department of Agriculture in the University of Minnesota made it more and more difficult for him to keep in as close touch with research as he desires so that the invitation to head the station at Geneva came as a welcome opportunity to once more gain a close contact with his chosen field.

MISS HAMBURGER RESIGNS POST

At a recent special meeting of the executive council of the Ulster County Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis, the resignation of Miss Mary A. Hamburger, for ten years superintendent nurse of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital, was received by the council with a feeling of regret bordering on consternation, as Miss Hamburger has come to seem an integral part of the beneficent work being carried on at the hospital.

After due consideration, the resignation was accepted with profound regret, and the council unanimously voted to present Miss Hamburger with a gift of fifty dollars as the material expression of that regret. Furthermore a committee, composed of Dr. Mary Gage-Day and Mrs. C. N. Reed, was appointed and instructed to communicate with Miss Hamburger, expressing for the council their sentiments regarding the severing of connections with the hospital.

In accordance the following letter with enclosed check has been sent to Miss Hamburger for the council:

Kingston, N. Y., April 11, 1921.

Miss Hamburger, Superintendent Nurse, R. N., Tuberculosis Hospital, Kingston, N. Y.

My Dear Miss Hamburger:

At a special meeting of the executive council of the "Ulster County Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis, held at the office of the president, Judge Joseph M. Fowler, your resignation as superintendent nurse of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital was received and accepted with profound regret, and a committee composed of Dr. Mary Gage-Day and Mrs. C. N. Reed was appointed to acquaint you with the feelings of the executive council regarding your ten years of most devoted, untiring, efficient service at the hospital. No words of theirs can adequately convey to you their appreciation of a service which has been marked by so much of social privation, continually out-going sympathy and endless patience on your part.

Deep as is the gratitude of the council for all this, it can in no measure equal that of the many sick and suffering ones to whom you have been a ministering angel, and the memory of their gratefulness, whether expressed or not, will be to you a priceless treasure as long as your life shall be spared.

The council hopes that you will accept the enclosed inadequate but grateful material expression of the sentiments which the above words have tried to convey.

In your going from the hospital you carry with you the best of good wishes for future happiness and success in life of every member of the council, which is represented by

Your sincere friends,
THE COMMITTEE.
(Signed) Mary Gage-Day.

Great Britain is face to face with the gravest upheaval in its history. Labor's triple alliance, comprising the miners, railwaymen and transport workers, the strongest and most important unions in Great Britain, are now, for the first time since these unions made their pact, standing shoulder to shoulder in a strike in what they consider a battle to defeat an organized attempt at drastic nation wide wage reductions. King George has declared a state of national emergency and called the reserves to the colors. The illustration shows General Sir Percy Radcliffe, director of military operations of the British war office, who has completed plans for the use of the military in the emergency now facing the British government. Troops, it is reported, will be used to replace the strikers. Thomas J. McNamara, minister of labor, who is representing Premier Lloyd-George in the conference. Thomas Richards, labor member of parliament, and general secretary of the Miners' Federation. Sir Richard A. S. Redmayne, chief inspector of mines for the British government and one of the foremost engineers and authorities of Great Britain, who is trying to bring the opposing factions together.

Mrs. Anna Burbett and son Cecil.

The trial of Cecil Burbett, eleven years old, indicted for the slaying of his seven-year-old playmate, Benny Slavin, has been postponed until the next term of the Stark County, Ind., Circuit Court, which begins May 2. The case has aroused such interest in the city of Ora, Ind., that the population of the place has been split into two factions. It is understood the defense will contend that the rifle with which Cecil is alleged to have killed Benny Slavin in his home at Ora was not in the hands of the Burbett boy at the time it was discharged. Cecil's fate will be in the hands of adult jurors, but all of the important witnesses will be children of tender years.

SPEEDY TYPIST HERE.

Novice Champion Shows Students How He Does It.

Arthur Neuenhaus, the present holder of the world's novice typewriting championship, gave a demonstration of his skill before a large crowd of students and their friends at Spencer's Business College on Monday afternoon. The demonstration showed the almost unbelievable speed combined with accuracy that it is possible for one to possess who has been gifted with natural aptitude for typewriting, and who supplements this with application and practice. Young Neuenhaus entered the international novice championship at Madison Square Garden, on October last, 1920, and won the championship at the rate of 100 net words per minute. He is only 14 years of age and commenced to use a typewriter only 12 months before entering the contest. Monday's speed tests were given by means of plain copy, strange dictation and from familiar matter. In writing he used a blank keyboard Underwood machine and used the same scientific touch system which is taught at Spencer's Business College. He transcribed from unfamiliar matter 130 words in 60 seconds without making an error and from familiar matter he wrote 217 words in 60 seconds without an error.

HARDING'S MESSAGE

rights of the citizenship lies the road to righteous adjustment.

It is needless to call your attention to the unfinished business inherited from the preceding congress. The appropriation bills for army and navy will have your early consideration.

Neither branch of the government can be unmindful of the call for reduced expenditure for these departments of our national defense. The government is in accord with the wish to eliminate the burdens of heavy armament. The United States ever will be in harmony with such a movement toward the higher attainments of peace. But we shall not entirely discard our agencies for defense until there is removed the need to defend. We are ready to cooperate with other nations to approximate disarmament, but merest prudence forbids that we disarm alone.

Naval Program No Threat.

The naval program which had its beginning in what seemed the highest assurances of peace can carry no threat after the latest proof of our national unselfishness. The reasonable limitation of personnel may be combined with economics of administration to lift the burdens of excessive outlay.

The war department is reducing the personnel of the army from the maximum provided by law in June, 1920, to the minimum directed by congress in a subsequent enactment. When further reduction is compatible with national security, it may well have the sanction of congress, so that a system of voluntary military training may offer to our young manhood the advantages of physical development, discipline and commitment to service, and constitute the army reserve in return for the training.

Nearly two and a half years ago the world war came to an end, and yet we find ourselves today in the technical state of war, though actually at peace, while Europe is at technical peace, far from tranquility and little progressed toward the hoped-for restoration.

It ill becomes us to express impatience that the European belligerents are not yet in full agreement, when we ourselves have been unable to bring constituted authority into accord in our own relations to the formally proclaimed peace.

League Turned Down Here.

Little avails in reciting the causes of delay in Europe or our own failure to agree. But there is no longer excuse for uncertainties respecting some phases of our foreign relationship. In the existing league of nations, world-governing with its super powers, this republic will have no part. There can be no misinterpretation, and there will be no betrayal of the deliberate expression of the American people in the recent election; and, settled in our decision for ourselves, it is only fair to say to the world in general, and to our associates in war in particular that the league covenant can have no sanction by us.

The aim to associate nations to prevent war, preserve peace, and promote civilization our people most cordially applauded. We yearned for this new instrument of justice, but we can have no part in a committal to an agency of force in unknown contingencies; we can recognize no super authority.

Manifestly the highest purpose of the league of nations was defeated in linking it with the treaty of peace and making it the enforcing agency of the victors of the war. International association for permanent peace must be conceived solely as an instrumentality of justice, unassociated with the passions of yesterday, and not so constituted as to attempt the dual functions of a political instrument of the conquerors and of an agency of peace. There can be no prosperity for the fundamental purposes sought to be achieved by any such association so long as it is an organ of any particular treaty, or committeed to the attainment of special aims of any nation or group of nations.

Association of Nations Welcome.

The American aspiration, indeed, the world aspiration, was an association of nations, based upon the application of justice and right, binding us in conference and cooperation for the prevention of war and pointing the way to a higher civilization and fraternity in which all the world might share. In rejecting the league covenant and uttering that rejection to our own people, and to the world, we make no surrender of our hope and aim for an association to promote peace in which we would most heartily join. We wish it to be conceived in peace and dedicated to peace, and will relinquish no effort to bring the nations of the world into such fellowship, not in the surrender of national sovereignty but rejoicing in a nobler exercise of it in the advancement of human activities, amid the compensations of peaceful achievement.

"In the national referendum to which I have adverted we pledged ourselves toward such association and the pledge will be faithfully kept. In the plight of policy and performance we told the American people we meant to seek an early establishment of peace. The United States alone among the allied and associated powers continues in a technical state of war against the Central Powers. This anomalous condition ought not to be permitted to continue. To establish the state of technical peace without further delay, I should approve a declaratory resolution by congress that effective with the qualification to protect our rights. Such action would be the simple keeping of faith with ourselves and could in no sense be construed as a diversion of those to whom we shared our sacrifice in war, for these powers are already at peace.

Such a resolution should undertake to do no more than thus to declare the state of peace, which all America craves. It must add no difficulty in effecting, with just reparations, the restoration for which all Europe yearns, and upon which the world's recovery must be founded. Neither former enemy nor ally can mistake America's position, because our attitude as to responsibility for the war and the necessity for just reparations already has had formal and very earnest expression.

"It would be unwise to undertake to make a statement of future policy with response to European affairs in such a declaration of a state of peace. In correcting the failure of the executive, in negotiating the most important treaty in the history of the nation, to recognize the constitutional powers of senate we would go to the other extreme, equally objectionable, if congress or the senate should assume the function of the legislative. Our highest duty is the preservation of the constituted powers of each, and the promotion of the spirit of cooperation so essential to our common welfare.

It would be idle to declare for separate treaties of peace with the central powers on the assumption that these alone would be adequate, because the situation is so involved that our peace engagements cannot ignore the Old World relationship and the settlements already affected, nor is it desirable to do so in preserving our own rights and contracting our future relationships.

The wiser course would seem to be the acceptance of the confirmation of our rights and in this as already provided and to engage under the existing treaty, assuming of course, that this can be satisfactorily accomplished by such explicit reservations and modifications as will secure our absolute freedom from inadvisable commitments and safeguard all our essential interests.

"Neither congress nor the people is as my assurance that a request to negotiate needed treaties of peace would be as superfluous and unnecessary as it is technically ineffective, and I know in my own heart there is none who would wish to embarrass the executive in the performance of his duty when we are all so eager to turn disappointment and delay into gratifying accomplishment.

"Labor must join management in understanding that the public which pays is the public to be served."

"The American people expect congress unfailingly to voice the gratitude of the republic in a generous and practical way to its defenders in the world war."

NOW DEMAND PIPE POCKETS

Philadelphia Newspaper Declares Up-to-Date Women Insist on Them in Their Garments.

New suits will have to possess a novel feature if up-to-date young women are to be satisfied. The pipe pocket should be considered in creating all feminine garments of the future.

Perhaps it is the effect of gaining the suffrage, so that they feel they must go on to wider, freer conquests, but, anyway, certain it is that the girls are getting tired of cigarettes and are turning to good old-fashioned corncob pipes as a solace for the languors of modernity, says the Philadelphia Ledger.

Some time ago several young women in New York decided that cigarettes were too expensive, and that they ought to join the great world movement for financial conservation by substituting pipes for the more delicate joy. But at that time ordinary pipes were not tried, usually small, ladylike ones being selected.

Now, however, substantial corncobs, cheap, picturesque and unbreakable, are the favorites.

"The corncob pipe is unpretentious, respectable and conservative," one of the corncob devotees explained. "Many of our great-grandmothers smoked corncobs. Especially is this true of those of us who had southern great-grandmothers. There is something like a Bolshevist about a cigarette, but one feel that in smoking corncobs we will be back on the sure foundation of good old-fashioned Americanism. The people who are always lamenting the good old days will be pleased, and will feel that the country is saved."

ROYALISTS MOURN BUT ARE QUIET

German Monarchists Realize That Rising Now Would Be Condemned —Joachim's Casket To Lie Beside That of Mother.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, April 12.—The first wave of royalist bitterness that followed the news of the death of the former German empress appeared to have subsided today. Even the most aggressive adherents of the old imperial regime seemed to realize that it would be not only bad taste but universally condemned throughout Germany if the event were made the occasion for attempts at a reactionary coup.

The royalist organ, Lokal Anzeiger, flatly announced that no monarchistic demonstrations are to be held on Saturday when the ex-empress is to be laid to her final rest in the mausoleum of the Antiken-Tempel at Potsdam.

Arrangements were begun today to transfer the body of the young Prince Joachim, who committed suicide last year, to the Antiken-Tempel and place the casket beside that of his mother a few days after her burial. This will be done in fulfillment of one of Augusta Victoria's dying wishes.

The various Hohenzollern princes decided at a conference held in Prince Eitel Friederick's villa, "Ingenheim," at Potsdam, to send Prince Oscar to Doorn to escort the empress's body to Potsdam. The other princes are to await their mother's body at Potsdam.

Court Pastor Von Dryander, who for more than a quarter of a century was the spiritual advisor of Wilhelm Hohenzollern and his family, will conduct the solemn burial services in the Antiken-Tempel Saturday morning This mausoleum, a structure of unique simplicity, is just off the historic Sans-Souci Palace, built by Frederick the Great.

Special invitations to the funeral are being issued by the head court marshal, Count Von Eulenburg.

The Kingston City Library will benefit from the entertainment, given under the auspices of the Federation of Women's Clubs. The program will begin exactly at 8:15 o'clock, and the doors will be closed during the presentation of each scene.

WASHBURN'S TRIAL TRIP.

Made Run From Poughkeepsie Here in 55 Minutes.

The tug Washburn, of the Cornell line, was given a trial trip on Monday, and made the run between Poughkeepsie and this city in 55 minutes against a head wind, and running under half power. The tug will be given another tryout today or Wednesday. This winter two new pipe boilers were installed in the tug at the Cornell shops.

The tugs Hartt, Pocahontas and Adams have gone into commission.

Towing on the river is picking up. There are now considerable coal shipments being made from the trestle in the Rondout creek.

The barge canal opens for the season the last of this month, and it is expected that when it opens towing on the river will increase in volume.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, April 12:—Dr. Walter Simons, the foreign minister, was the target of attacks in the Berlin press oday because of an interview with M. Sauerwein, Berlin correspondent of the Paris Matin in which Simons was represented as repudiating the attitude of the German cabinet on reparations.

The article was the sensation of the day in Wilhelmstrasse, where the atmosphere was accordingly tense. An official inquiry into the matter is promised for later today.
